*. It frequently happens that after ending a phrase down-bow it is necessary to begin the next phrase also on the down-bow, although there is no rest in which to retake the bow. In such cases a short pause in the sound will occur during which the player must take the bow back to the frog, but inasmuch as it is at the end of a phrase, the slight break will not matter.

The First Position (I)

In moving one-half tone higher from the Half Position, the hand is placed in the First Position, which contains the following intervals :—

In the following exercise, while playing each note, place the finger which is to play the following note in position to play that note. Whenever possible this procedure should be used, for example, in measures 11 and 12 of exercise No. 3 above. Also, while playing open strings, have the fingers ready to play the next note. Practice this exercise very slowly at first.

In the above exercise, the student must be careful to play the ninth measure and all similar measures with short but smooth strokes of the bow, especially on the eighth notes. However, in such measures as the second one, a fair portion of the bow must be used on the third beat in order to retrieve the bow sufficiently to play the next measure. In this case, be especially careful not to accentuate the third beat.

Alternate fingering which may be used in descending :

The first system of musical notation for 'The Song of the Lark' is shown. It consists of a single staff with a treble clef. The melody is written in a key with one flat (B-flat). The notes are: G4 (quarter), A4 (quarter), Bb4 (quarter), A4 (quarter), G4 (quarter), F4 (quarter), E4 (quarter), D4 (half). Above the staff, there are Roman numerals II, III, and h.P. (half note). Below the staff, there are fingerings: 4, 2, 4, 1, 4, 2, 4, 1.

The image displays three exercises for guitar, numbered 1, 2, and 3, written in bass clef with a 4/4 time signature. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and fingerings (numbers 1-4). Specific guitar techniques are indicated by 'h.P.' (harmonic) and Roman numerals (II, IV, V) above the staff. The exercises are arranged in a vertical sequence, with exercise 1 at the top, exercise 2 in the middle, and exercise 3 at the bottom. Each exercise consists of multiple staves of music, with some staves containing additional markings like 'II', 'IV', 'V', and 'h.P.'.

Alternate fingerings for the B flat major scale.

A musical staff in bass clef with a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The melody consists of half notes. Above the staff, Roman numerals indicate the chords: II, V, IV, and h. P. (half rest). Below the staff, fingerings are indicated by numbers 1, 4, 0, 1, 1, 2, 4, 4, 4, 1, 4, 1, 0, 4, 1.

Another fingering which may be used in descending:

The second system of the musical score consists of two staves. The upper staff contains two measures of music, each marked with a Roman numeral above the staff: 'II' and 'III'. The lower staff contains a sequence of nine notes, each with a number below it: 4, 2, 4, 1, 4, 2, 4, 4, 1. Above the right side of the lower staff, the text 'h. P.' is written.

Musical notation for the bass line of 'The Rose Tree'. The notation is on a single staff with a bass clef. It includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, and dynamic markings like 'h.p.' (pianissimo). Above the staff, there are fingerings (4, 1, 4, 2, etc.) and breath marks (V). Below the staff, there are additional fingerings (4, 1, 4, 2, etc.) and a final '2' at the end.

The Seventh Position (VII).

In this and the following two positions the thumb, which up to now has been placed either along the back of the neck or slightly to the left side of the back of the neck, now changes its place by gradually moving much more towards the left side of the neck.

The Ninth Position (IX).

In this and all higher positions the fourth finger is usually not used, as the position of the hand now makes it more practical to use the third finger. The note which occurs an octave above the open string need not be pressed but may be played as a harmonic, touching the string lightly with one finger only. This is most advisable when the note is approached or left by an interval larger than a whole step.

The student must not be content with merely acquiring technical proficiency on the instrument, but must constantly work towards making his playing musically expressive. The nuances indicated in the following exercise are suggested by the editor; the student may follow them or substitute his own. It is strongly recommended that phrasings and nuances be carefully introduced in all pieces which are to be played from now on.

*turn the hand, placing the thumb above the strings, so that the first finger is parallel to the second.

The Tenth Position (X)

Proceeding to move one-half step higher than the Ninth Position, we come to the Tenth Position. While playing the higher positions, the thumb gradually moves from behind the neck and is placed against the side of the fingerboard. Just how this occurs depends to some extent on the shaping of the neck and shoulder of the instrument, and also the length of the player's thumb. But generally speaking, in the Eighth Position the thumb should be placed on the side of the neck of the bass, and in the Ninth and Tenth Positions it is moved to the side of the fingerboard. As in the previous position, the fourth finger is usually not used. Most commonly the second finger is used to press the string firmly instead of utilizing the harmonic, but there are many instances when a shift to this position will be greatly facilitated by employing the second finger on the octave harmonic. The times when the third finger on the A String will be used in this position are exceedingly rare ; even rarer will be the instances when it is necessary to use the E string.

The score consists of ten staves of music, each with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat) and a common time signature (C). The music is written in a single melodic line on a bass clef staff. The notation includes various fingering numbers (1-4) and articulation marks (accents, slurs, and breath marks). The piece is divided into sections labeled with Roman numerals: X, VIII, V, D, G, and IV. The first staff begins with a measure rest, followed by a series of eighth and sixteenth notes. The second staff continues the melodic line, with a measure rest and a series of eighth notes. The third staff begins with a measure rest, followed by a series of eighth notes. The fourth staff continues the melodic line, with a measure rest and a series of eighth notes. The fifth staff begins with a measure rest, followed by a series of eighth notes. The sixth staff continues the melodic line, with a measure rest and a series of eighth notes. The seventh staff begins with a measure rest, followed by a series of eighth notes. The eighth staff continues the melodic line, with a measure rest and a series of eighth notes. The ninth staff begins with a measure rest, followed by a series of eighth notes. The tenth staff continues the melodic line, with a measure rest and a series of eighth notes.
